

If your dog has a sensitive stomach...

Royal Canin Gastrointestinal food is available if your dog has a sensitive stomach or is prone to having loose stool or vomiting. Chasin' Tails uses this veterinarian-recommended formula as a first step preventative for an upset stomach.

Why do our vets recommend this formula?

High-quality protein and carbohydrate sources compensate for decreased intestinal efficiency and ensure optimal nutrient intake.

Digestive aids help restore the natural flora in the gastrointestinal (GI) tract, and promotes healthy digestion.

Contains a restricted fat concentration that simultaneously provides a maintained energy level and it also helps dogs with difficulties digesting fat.

We follow strict protocols if your dog is experiencing an upset stomach. First, we start by feeding Royal Canin Gastrointestinal. Then, we add probiotics to help your dog's stomach get back on track as quickly as possible.

Royal Canin Gastrointestinal is a reduced fat formula that is easily digestible, extremely palatable, and is a complete and balanced diet. The active probiotics that are present in the food optimize digestion and absorption of vital nutrients.

When a dog is experiencing change, whether environment or emotion, it can have a huge impact on their GI tract. We strive to make sure each and every one of the dogs in our care are as comfortable and happy as possible. No matter the reason we choose to feed this formula, it's provided at no extra charge because our goal is to ensure that your dog's vacation is stress-free.

Please note that your own food can be substituted for any reason at no additional cost, however any additional feedings are charged at $3 per meal. Please bag own food individually per meal, and we recommend that you provide 1-2 days worth of extra food.

Chasin' Tails is Pleased to Feed and Recommend Redpaw X-Series.

When you leave your pet with us, we only offer them the very best. That's why we are now serving X-Series here at Chasin'Tails. We specifically selected Redpaw X-Series because it allows you to easily and safely transition from other brands of petfood without any concern of digestive upset.

When a dog experiences an environmental or emotional change, this can often result in an undesirable shift in the digestive tract. The main concerns are loose stools and loss of energy – which can diminish your dog's experience at Chasin'Tails.

After careful research, we selected X-Series based on its attention to nutritional detail. Its carefully selected ingredients and balanced formulas help aid and strengthen the digestive tract. This can happen as quickly as the first feeding – which helps your dog to have a fun, playful and safe experience at Chasin'Tails.
